

Education in Guernsey

Whether you're moving to the island with toddlers or teenagers, Guernsey's education system offers plenty of choice.

Children up to the age of 18 have access to free schooling via the state system, and the island's three independent colleges deliver first-class private education.

All three to four year olds are entitled to free preschool provision for up to 15 hours per week, 38 weeks a year (term time only).

The Education System

Guernsey's education system is very similar to the UK. Most pupils will be allocated a primary school at the beginning of the school year in which they reach their fifth birthday.

Primary school places are allocated by the catchment area and are at the heart of each parish community.

Children stay in primary education until they are 11 years old, when they will usually be awarded a space at their nearest high school or a grant-aided college.

More than 80% of pupils decide to stay in education after Year 11. The College of Further Education and Sixth Form Centres are good options for continued learning, and there are plenty of opportunities to learn new skills via apprenticeship schemes and training courses.

Curriculum

Guernsey follows the same curriculum as the UK. Children go through three key stages at primary school level; Foundation Stage, Key Stage 1 and Key Stage 2.

Once children move on to secondary school, Key Stage 3 covers Years 7 to 9 and Key Stage 4 applies to years 10 and 11. In addition, pupils sit GCSEs and A-Levels at 16 and 18 years of age respectively.

In addition to the full range of A-Levels, Guernsey Grammar School and Sixth Form Centre also offers the International Baccalaureate (IB) Diploma, which is recognised around the world.

All schools are subjected to regular inspections that focus on the impact of schools in improving the educational experiences and lives of pupils through learning and achievement.

Guernsey's pass grade average frequently exceeds that of the UK.

State Schools

Guernsey has 12 state primary schools, including two Catholic schools. These are split evenly across the island's 10 parishes with the exception of St Peter Port, which has three.

The States is in the process of delivering non-selective secondary school allocation, so children will attend one of the island's secondary schools, based on their catchment area.

Guernsey also has three special schools for pupils requiring more specialist provision - two primary school facilities and one within the state's secondary school system. To be considered for admission to Le Rondin or Le Murier schools, pupils need to undergo a Formal Assessment, which identifies their prime area of need.

Private Schools

Guernsey has three independent colleges, two of which accept preschool-aged children.

Elizabeth College comprises Acorn House Preschool and Infant School, Beechwood Junior School and Elizabeth College Senior School. Acorn House accepts children from three years of age and, alongside Beechwood, is co-ed up to the age of 11 years. Visit the website for more information www.elizabethcollege.gg.

The Ladies' College has historical links with Cheltenham Ladies College and accepts girls from preschool through to 18 years. When pupils reach sixth form, the College fosters a joint arrangement with Elizabeth College. For further information visit www.ladiescollege.com.

Blanchelande College is an independent Catholic college, providing education from preschool through to GCSE level. The school has recently become co-ed, having formerly been a girls' school. For more information visit www.blanchelande.co.uk.

Extra-curricular Activities

Guernsey's schools boast excellent sports facilities, encouraging participation for all and mirroring the island's healthy lifestyle.

There are lots of opportunities for children to participate in sports, both on and off the water, at a competitive and recreational level. Many after-school clubs also offer various music, dance, drama and youth groups.

Guernsey's reputation as a safe, family-friendly community encourages children to embrace healthy activity at grass-roots level.
